

The age of fishes

With Dr. Matt Friedman of the University of Michigan

Matt Friedman is a paleontologist at the University of Michigan focused on the evolution of fishes. His interests center on the origin of phenotypic variety, with a particular emphasis on the unique clues provided by fossils. His talk will examine case studies showing how fossils help us understand the origin of today's diversity.

Friday , October 21st

4 : 0 0 P. M. (PST)

Email the BGSA at biograd@humboldt.edu

for details on connecting to the zoom meeting

